‘A strong Medical Council is vital to assure the safety and quality of healthcare provision. I bring to this role broad experience from growing up in Papua New Guinea, training in New Zealand, and working in Samoa, the Asia-Pacific region and most recently South Auckland. As a public health physician, I see every day the difference that excellent clinicians make to people’s lives. My experience in workforce development, clinical leadership and governance roles in both DHB and NGO sectors, combined with my collaborative and consultative style I believe will serve the Council well should I be elected.’
